management tools in place (Chimango, 2007). Mutoko's granite has effects on the local people, environment and the country's economy. It is against this background that the researcher saw that there was need to investigate and analyze the impact of black granite mining so as to ascertain whether there is sustainable development or underdevelopment (poverty) in the Mutoko district of Zimbabwe. This study ascertains relationship between granite and the socio-economic lives of the people as well as the biophysical impacts, from 1972 to 2022. Also, this research proffers recommendations on what needs to be done to improve the situation. However, this chapter covers components such as background of the study, statement of the problem, research
